Speech from Thos. F. Meagher

[illegible]

[illegible] which mark an independent nationality has [illegible] been wrested from it—fraudu[lently] [illegible] wrested—and hence these [illegible] to their legitimate owners—[illegible] which they rightfully [illegible] and from which they were wrongfully taken. Hence it is not less a just than a necessary war—not less a sacred than an imperative war. Not having been provoked, but on the contrary having been kept back—every stratagem—I had almost said—having been resorted to in order to meet and conciliate those who are now in arms against the Government, and every resort having been exhausted—it was not till the hostile arms appeared under Arlington Heights and shook their clenched arms in the very face of the majesty of the American people menacing the American Capitol—not until then did the American President, already spurred and goaded on—not until that moment did he call upon the people to strip the sword which has been sheathed since the Mexican war and assert for themselves the supremacy and inviolability which has been conferred on the Chief Magistracy of the Republic. Should this Government fail to assert its majesty [illegible] assert the supremacy it derives from the people then I say it deserves to perish.

But war has its virtues and its blessings as well as its calamities and you must bear in mind that every great nation has passed through such an ordeal as that which it has pleased God that America should now pass through. England has had wars—the wars of the Roses—the Cromwellian war—the wars of the succession—the war of the restoration [illegible] greatness of England [illegible] that she stands amongst the first class [nations] of the world having [illegible] strength rather than weakness from these [illegible] which she has passed [illegible] of sagacity [illegible] the nations of the world. Germany [illegible] thirty years' war [illegible] say that she has suffered [illegible] She is now [illegible] grand philosophers [illegible] France [illegible] revolutions [illegible] through which she has passed she has emerged with new beauty with [illegible] and with bright prospects. Wherefore I am not sorry for this war. Instead of being induced to deprecate it I am inclined to encourage and incite it. As an adopted citizen, I should feel that I was derelict to my duty if in this hour of the greatest peril [illegible] I did not call upon my countrymen to stand by and to stay the flag whose protection thousands of Irish emigrants have so fondly [illegible] under which [illegible] first [illegible] have [illegible] been cast to uphold [illegible] this wide continent with all the nerve of the Irish arm and with all the warmth of the Irish heart.

For my part [illegible] this quarrel [illegible] between [illegible] citizens [illegible] should [illegible] the duties they are [illegible] to their common country. [illegible] Every insult [illegible] upon that flag [illegible] cast upon [illegible] which I [illegible] that I would be unworthy of the hospitality which I received when [illegible] first [illegible] ago set my foot on American [illegible] of Brooklyn if I did not with all the energy of my mind, with all the fervor of my heart and with all the power of my [illegible] and by that flag in life and in death [illegible] I trust in God I shall never be wanting in my devotion to it.

WEDNESDAY MORNING, JAN. 1, 1862.

The New Year.

The New Year seems a very proper time to review the events of the past and to indulge in speculations of the future.

To the United States of America the last year has been one of sorrow, humiliation and distress. From the highest pinnacle of prosperity—at peace at home and abroad—she has been struck down by the greatest affliction that can befall a nation—without cause—without necessity—for no other reason than to gratify the ambition of unprincipled men.

Our own State, generally prosperous, advancing in improvement and wealth has been grievously afflicted by an unprecedented flood, which has destroyed the property and present hopes of many of our citizens,—sweeping away the results of many years of untiring labor. To repair these disasters will require firmness, patient and long continued industry.

The discovery of gold placers on our eastern frontier, is an important feature of the history of the past year. The developements of their wealth—the amounts of mineral brought to this market—have excited confident hopes of their future value.

Many of us have been required to take an earthly farewell of the dearest friends within the year that is past. We now renew our tears at the recollection of their absence; and while we realize that they cannot come to us, the reflection presses upon that within the present year we may go to them. "Mourning has not only been heard in Ramah but throughout every part of the inhabited earth."

We are now looking to the future. We trust the present year will witness the restoration of our Union, our past national prosperity in some degree, as well in the South as we now witness it in the North. Our hopes are, and our confidence is, that the defeat of the legions arrayed in rebellion, will scatter the leaders and open the eyes of the masses, and that the latter will gladly come back to the nationality upon which they have made war,—learning from the disastrous lessons of experience the folly and wrong of being lead away from duty and honor by the ambitious aspirations of unprincipled men.

The gold mines on our frontiers will produce wonderful results on the business and condition of Oregon. The fact seems demonstrated beyond the shadow of a doubt that our gold fields are richer than those of California in her palmiest days. Those who live the present year will be able to appreciate the change in the affairs of Oregon which the large influx of gold must inevitably produce.

We could wish our friends to realize their hopes the present year. Few may do it;—more will not. Yet we shall pass along, and if some fall by the way, the world will still go on without, as it would with us, in its busy scenes. The great event of which we should think most, is that of which we think least. The conclusion of the whole matter, so far as all our best interests are concerned, is "To fear God, and keep his commandments; for this is the whole duty of man."

Readers, friends, all, you have our best wishes that you may realize a Happy New Year.

The Victoria Colonist exchanges with most if not with all the secession papers of Oregon. That paper anticipates war between England and the United States on account of the seizure of Slidell and Mason. It claims the secession parties of California and Oregon as the allies of England in the expected war. It insists on different occasions upon this advantage in such war. Not a secession paper in Oregon has noticed this claim of the British press.

See the extract from an address by the patriot Meagher, on the first page of this paper.

Too True.

"No use for farmers to raise grain on the Upper Willamette until the river is locked at the Falls, so that wheat can be transported to market without the expenses of transportation well nigh eating up the crop. And this is made more true by the loss of the Breakwater, which renders the hauling of all produce round the falls in wagons a necessity—thus adding a material expense to the costs of transportation."

An intelligent farmer from the Upper country, made these remarks to us yesterday, and he added that almost every farmer in his neighborhood held the views he had expressed, and were going to the mines.

There is much truth in the quotation we have here made. At the usual prices of of wheat, taking into consideration the cost of sending it to market, it is little object for farmers to raise it. Nature has fitted this valley in its fertile soils and genial seasons for a great wheat country, but to make it so permanently, much depends on the labors of man in providing roads and other facilities by which it can be sent cheaply to market.

Some weeks since there appeared in the Oregon Farmer a communication on the subject of the construction of a canal around the falls at Oregon City. It was demonstrated that such a work would greatly lessen the costs of transportation on the river. Facts were presented to show that without such improvement farming on the Upper Willamette could not be made profitable; that the counties interested, by furnishing means in proportion to their population and wealth, could accomplish the work in a reasonable time, and it was most conclusively demonstrated that the facilities which such a canal would afford for cheap transportation, would encourage farmers in their business, and greatly add to the value of their property.

That canal should be constructed. Nature has provided a convenient route for the canal. The work can be done. The counties possess the means to do it. The upper country will never flourish as it ought until the work is accomplished; and its construction is of very great importance to the interests of this city.

There is such a thing as seizing time at the flood. That time is now. We have foolishly wasted one season, because "Every man's business was nobody's business." The examination of the canal route was made last year by Mr. Carter. Measures then could have been put in train to complete the work, if not in the present, in the coming year; and those men who threw cold water upon the enterprise, could not have more effectually blasted the prospect for bettering the condition of the Upper Country.

Items from the Walla Walla Statesman.

The Statesman says that between forty and fifty thousand dollars worth of goods had been sold in Walla Walla for the Salmon river mines for the week ending on the 20th Dec., the sales made for cash.

Mossman on his last trip from Salmon river, brought twenty lbs. of gold dust. He could bring no more. He met a pack train of 300 animals and 200 men bound for the mines.

In the Salmon river diggings the snow was about two feet deep.

A letter from Florence City says that the mines are on the divide between Clearwater and Salmon River. The gold is found in flats—so flat that one is compelled to hunt sometime to see which way the water runs.

The Salmon river mines are from two to nine feet deep; and in many claims they cannot at this season work more than five hours with a rocker, in which they take out from nine to nineteen pounds a day.

The Statesman considers it utterly impracticable to locate a trail with any directness from the Grande Ronde to the Salmon river mines.

Provisions are plenty at Walla Walla.—Miners were leaving every day for Salmon river. Work was suspended at Oro Fino and Rhodes' Creek, except on some newly discovered hill diggings, which were paying well.

A gentleman writes from the Salmon river Diggings: "I was in California in her best days for mining, but these mines far excel them in richness."

The Memphis Appeal of a recent date, says that about one hundred bales of cotton per day are coming in. One hundred and sixty three bales came in one day. Hope was entertained that it could be smuggled through the blockade. The editor is indignant that the planters do not hold back their cotton, instead of thus furnishing a tempting prize to the enemy.

Dr. Johnson once said: "A man is in general better pleased when he has a good dinner upon his table than when his wife talks Greek."

From our Olympia Correspondent.

OLYMPIA, Dec. 23d, 1861.

Council.

The Union Resolutions of Col. Hubbs being taken up, Mr. Clarke moved to strike out all that was significant of censure of the rebels—leaving nothing but a tame endorsement of the Government. His amendment was adopted by the following vote:

Ayes—Messrs. Biles, Clark, Moore, and Shaw—4.

Nays—Messrs. Hubbs, Webster and Burbank, President—3.

After further emasculation, the soulless peace dodge was referred to the Committee on Federal Relations.

The resolution to go into joint convention to elect a Printer was amended by striking out Monday, Dec. 23d, and inserting Dec. 24, and then tabled.

Council then passed the House Joint Resolution adjourning over the holidays.

The Thurnlike divorce bill read a first time.

Mr. Moore introduced a resolution declaring the impossibility of so assigning the District Judges as to meet the wants of the people, and aiming to secure a conferring of civil and criminal jurisdiction upon the Probate Courts, and asking an opinion of the Supreme Court as to the constitutionality of such an act. Passed.

It is hardly supposable that that august tribunal will volunteer an opinion or a plea to this jurisdiction before it is raised in Court, or advise the legislature as to what laws they should pass.

TUESDAY, Dec. 24.

Council this day passed the Union Resolutions introduced by Col. Hubbs, but converted in peace resolves on motion of Mr. Clarke.

Quite a debate sprung up on a measure assuming the collection of our quota of direct tax, levied by the Act of Congress, approved August 5, 1861. Mr. Biles, of Thurston opposed the prompt payment of it, on the ground that Government had been unmindful of us in its delays in the payment of the war debt.

Mr. Hubbs took him to task pretty severely, and made a patriotic appeal to come forward now and strengthen and sustain the Government.

The resolution as to the printer was laid over, leaving Mr. Murphy in peaceable possession of the printing—till after the holidays.

The change of the name of El Dorado county to Idaho, was approved, and some other unimportant local business finished, when the Council adjourned till after the holidays; Messrs. Biles and Moore, and the Joint Committee on the part of the Council, to visit the University and grounds at Seattle.

Dec. 25.—There is good sleighing here, and our streets are alive with any number of "jumpers," box-sleds, and other apologies for sleighs, and the music of cow-bells adds gaiety to our Christmas sports.

House of Representatives.

MONDAY, Dec. 23, 1861.

Messrs. Bozarth, Smith, and Gardner, all of Clark county, appeared in their seats, and were sworn. This leaves but six yet to come, viz: Messrs. Babcock, Beatty, and Smith, from Walla Walla and of Clark, McCall of Wahkiakum and Cowlitz, and Thorndike, of Jefferson.

Mr. Griswold introduced a series of appropriate Union resolutions, which were ordered printed. The Council resolves on the same subject, were taken up and also ordered printed.

Several ferry bills were favorably reported upon by the Committee on Corporations, and passed.

A resolution relative to the new Collector of Customs and the removal of the Custom House from Port Townsend to False Dungeness, Port Angelos or Cherburg, the latter three names all meaning the same place, was introduced by Mr. Ferguson, and referred to a select committee consisting of Messrs. Bates, Bozarth, and Wilson.

A joint resolution was introduced and passed the House in regard to adjourning over the holidays.

The bill establishing and incorporating the University, was referred to committee on education.

The bill creating the County of El Dorado was taken up, and the same changed to Idaho—when the bill was passed.

Messrs. Bates, Yantis, and Bozarth, were appointed on the part of the House to visit the Territorial University building and grounds at Seattle.

Mr. Chapman, of Pierce, tried to secure the passage of a motion to retake the manuscript of the Governor's Message from Printer Murphy, but failed by the signal vote of 6 ayes to 2 noes, the yeas and nays being demanded.

The Nez Perces county bill was then taken up and passed its requisite readings.

TUESDAY, Dec. 24.

The House ordered the resolution in regard to the Custom House change and the Collector, together with the report of special committee, printed.

Several bills for ferry charters and special privileges, were introduced, and referred to appropriate standing committees.

Mr. Cock introduced a resolution as to the collection of the direct tax apportioned to be paid by this Territory, and assuming the collection of said taxes, which was read three times under suspension of the rules and passed.

The Union resolutions of Mr. Griswold, on his motion, were made the special order of the day for January 3d, 1861.

Adjourned to January 3d, 1861.

QUID NUNC.

MARRIED:

At the residence of Dr. J. G. Glenn, on Tuesday evening, Dec. 31st, by Rev. P. B. Chamberlain, Mr. G. F. Boynton, of Olympia, W. T., to Miss Fannie M. Kittridge, of Portland, Oregon.

NEW TO-DAY.

To Merchants and Shippers.

PORTACE AT OREGON CITY.

THE MERCHANTS AND SHIPPERS of the Willamette Valley are notified that are now prepared with plenty of teams and careful drivers to pass freight over the Portage between Oregon City and Canemah as fast as could be expected.

One of us will be at all times at each end of the route, to attend to the forwarding of the freight, so as to prevent any unnecessary delay.

The New Year

The New Year seems a very proper time to review the events of the past and to indulge in speculations of the future

To the United States of America the last year has been one of sorrow, humiliation and distress From the highest pinnacle of prosperity—at peace at home and abroad—she has been struck down by the greatest affliction that can befall a nation—without cause—without necessity—for no other reason than to gratify the ambition of unprincipled men

Our own State, generally prosperous, advancing in improvement and wealth has been grievously afflicted by an unprecedented flood, which has destroyed the property and present hopes of many of our citizens,—sweeping away the results of many years of untiring labor. To repair these disasters will require firmness, patient and long continued industry

The discovery of gold placers on our eastern frontier, is an important feature of the history of the past year The developements of their wealth—the amounts of mineral brought to this market—have excited confident hopes of their future value.

Many of us have been required to take an earthly farewell of the dearest friends within the year that is past We now renew our tears at the recollection of their absence and while we realize that they cannot come to us, the reflection presses upon that within the present year we may go to them "Mourning has not only been heard in Ramah but throughout every part of the inhabited earth"

We are now looking to the future We trust the present year will witness the restoration of our Union, our past national prosperity in some degree, as well in the South as we now witness it in the North Our hopes are, and our confidence is, that the defeat of the legions arrayed in rebellion, will scatter the leaders and open the eyes of the masses, and that the latter will, gladly come back to the nationality upon which they have made war,—learning from the disastrous lessons of experience the folly and wrong of being lead away from duty and honor by the ambitious aspirations of unprincipled men

The gold mines on our frontiers will produce wonderful results on the business and condition of Oregon The fact seems demonstrated beyond the shadow of a doubt that our gold fields are richer than those of California in her palmiest days. Those who live the present year will be able to appreciate the change in the affairs of Oregon which the large influx of gold must inevitably produce

We could wish our friends to realize their hopes the present year Few may do it—more will not Yet we shall pass along, and if some fall by the way, the world will still go on without, as it would with us in its busy scenes The great event of which we should think most, is that of which we think least The conclusion of the whole matter, so far as all our best interests are concerned, is "To fear God, and keep his commandments, for this is the whole duty of man"

Readers, friends, all, you have our best wishes that you may realize a Happy New Year

The Victoria Colonist exchanges with most if not with all the secession papers of Oregon That paper anticipates war between England and the United States on account of the seizure of Slidell and Mason It claims the secession parties of California and Oregon as the allies of England in the expected war It insists on different occasions upon this advantage in such war Not a secession paper in Oregon has noticed this claim of the British press

See the extract from an address by the [illegible] on the first [illegible]

Too True

"No use for farmers to raise grain on the Upper Willamette until the river is locked at the Falls, so that wheat can be transported to market without the expenses of transportation well nigh eating up the crop And this is made more true by the loss of the Breakwater, which renders the hauling of all produce round the falls in wagons a necessity—thus adding a material expense to the costs of transportation"

An intelligent farmer from the Upper country made these remarks to us yesterday, and he added that almost every farmer in his neighborhood held the views he had expressed, and were going to the mines

There is much truth in the quotation we have here made At the usual prices of wheat, taking into consideration the cost of sending it to market it is little object for farmers to raise it Nature has fitted this valley in its fertile soils and genial seasons for a great wheat country, but to make it so permanently much depends on the labors of man in providing roads and other facilities by which it can be sent cheaply to market

Some weeks since there appeared in the Oregon Farmer a communication on the subject of the construction of a canal around the falls at Oregon City It was demonstrated that such a work would greatly lessen the costs of transportation on the river Facts were presented to show that without such improvement farming on the Upper Willamette could not be made profitable; that the counties interested, by furnishing means in proportion to their population and wealth could accomplish the work in a reasonable time and it was most conclusively demonstrated that the facilities which such a canal would afford for cheap transportation, would encourage farmers in their business, and greatly add to the value of their property

That canal should be constructed Nature has provided a convenient route for the canal The work can be done The counties possess the means to do it The upper country will never flourish as it ought until the work is accomplished, and its construction is of very great importance to the interests of this city

There is such a thing as seizing time at the flood That time is now We have foolishly wasted one season, because "Every man's business was nobody's business" The examination of the canal route was made last year by Mr Carter Measures then could have been put in train to complete the work if not in the present, in the coming year and those men who threw cold water upon the enterprise, could not have more effectually blasted the prospect for bettering the condition of the Upper Country.

Items from the Walla Walla Statesman.

The Statesman says that between forty and fifty thousand dollars worth of goods had been sold in Walla Walla for the Salmon river mines for the week ending on the 20th Dec, the sales made for cash

Mossman on his last trip from Salmon river, brought twenty lbs, of gold dust He could bring no more He met a pack train of [illegible] animals and 200 men bound for the mines

In the Salmon river diggings the snow was about two feet deep

A letter from Florence City says that the mines are on the divide between Clearwater and Salmon River The gold is found in flats—so flat that one is compelled to hunt some time to see which way the water runs

The Salmon river mines are from two to nine feet deep, and in many claims they cannot at this season work more than five hours with a rocker, in which they take out from [illegible] to nineteen pounds a day,

The Statesman considers it utterly impracticable to locate a trail with any directness from the Grande Ronde to the Salmon river mines

Provisions are plenty at Walla Walla—Miners were leaving every day for Salmon river Work was suspended at Oro Fino and Rhodes Creek except in some newly discovered hill diggings which were paying well

A gentleman writes from the Salmon river Diggings "I was in California in her best days for mining, but these mines far excel them in richness"

The Memphis Appeal of a recent date says that about one hundred bales of cotton per day were coming in One hundred and [illegible] bales came in one day [illegible] that it could be smuggled [illegible] The editor is indignant [illegible] not hold back their [illegible] thus furnishing a tempting prize [illegible]

From our Olympia Correspondent

Council.

The Union Resolutions of Col. Hubbs being taken up, Mr Clark moved to strike out all that was significant of censure of the rebels—leaving nothing but a tame endorsement of the Government. His amendment was adopted by the following vote

Ayes—Messrs. Biles Clark Moore and Shaw—4

Nays—Messrs. Hubbs Webster, and Burbank President—3

After further [illegible], the soulless peace dodge was referred to the Committee on Federal Relations

The resolution to go into joint convention to elect a Printer, was amended by striking out Monday Dec 23d and inserting Dec 24, and then tabled

Council then passed the House Joint Resolution adjourning over the holidays

The Thornton divorce bill read a first time

Mr Moore introduced a resolution declaring the impossibility of so assigning the District Judges as to meet the wants of the people, and aiming to secure a conferring of civil and criminal jurisdiction upon the Probate Courts and asking an opinion of the Supreme Court as to the constitutionality of such an act. Passed.

It is hardly supposable that that august tribunal will [illegible] an opinion or a plea to this jurisdiction, before it is raised in Court or advise the legislature as to what laws they should pass

TUESDAY Dec. 24

Council this day passed the Union Resolutions introduced by Col. Hubbs, but emasculated in peace resolves on motion of Mr Clarke

Quite a debate sprung up on a measure [illegible] the collection of our quota of direct tax levied by the Act of Congress, approved August 5 1861. Mr Biles, of Thurston opposed the prompt payment of it on the ground that Government had been unmindful of us in its delays in the payment of the war debt

Mr Hubbs took him to task pretty severely and made a patriotic appeal [illegible] to come forward [illegible] and strengthen and sustain the Government

The resolution as to the printer was laid over, leaving Mr Murphy in peaceful possession of the printing,—till after the holidays.

The change of the name of El Dorado county to Idaho, was approved and some other unimportant bill business finished when the Council adjourned till after the holidays Messrs Biles and Moore, and the Joint Committee on the part of the Council, to visit the University and grounds at Seattle.

Dec 25—There is good sleighing here and our streets are alive with any number of jumpers, [illegible] ox-sleds and other apologies for sleighs and the music of cow bells adds gaiety to our Christmas sports.

House of Representatives.

MONDAY Dec 23, 1861

Messrs Bozarth Smith and Gardner, all of Clark county, appeared in their seats and were sworn. This leaves but six yet to come, viz Messrs Babcock, Beatty, and Smith from Walla Walla and of Clark, McCall of Wahkiakum and Cowlitz, and Thorndike, of Jefferson)

Mr Griswold introduced a series of appropriate Union resolutions, which were ordered printed. The Council resolves on the same subject were taken up and also ordered printed

Several ferry bills were favorably reported upon by the Committee on Corporations, and passed

A resolution relating to the new Collector of Customs and the removal of the Custom House from Port Townsend to False Dungeness Port Angelos or Cherbourg, the latter three names all meaning the same place, was introduced by Mr Ferguson and referred to a select committee consisting of Messrs Bates, Bozarth and Wilson

A joint resolution was introduced and passed the House in regard to adjourning over the holidays

The bill establishing and incorporating the University, was referred to committee on education

The bill creating the County of El Dorado was taken up, and the name changed to Idaho—when the bill was passed

Messrs Bates [illegible] and Bozarth were appointed on the part of the House to visit the Territorial University building and grounds at Seattle.

Mr Chapman of Pierce tried to secure the passage of a motion to take the manuscript of the Governor's Message from Printer Murphy, but failed by the signal vote of 6 ayes to 2 noes, the ayes and nays being demanded

The [illegible] county bill was then taken up and passed its requisite readings

TUESDAY, Dec 24

The House ordered the resolution in regard to the Custom House change and the Collector, together with the report of special committee, printed

Several bills for ferry charters and special privileges were introduced and referred to appropriate standing committees

Mr Cock introduced a resolution as to the collection of the direct tax apportioned to be paid by this Territory, and assuming the [illegible] of said tax which was read three times and under suspension of the rules was passed

The Union resolutions of Mr Griswold [illegible] were made the special order of the day for January 3d, 1862.

CITY.

BOAT RACE.—A boat race is to come off on [illegible] next, at one o'clock. Lyman Scammon and Cornelius French [illegible] rivals—each in his own boat. They start from the [illegible] Hotel and pull to the head of Ross' [illegible] and back again to the place of starting. The man winning gets the [illegible]—one hundred dollars. From the muscular appearance of the men, we judge they are well matched.

OX [illegible] DROWNED.—We learn that an ox [illegible] while attempting to leave the ferry boat [illegible] landing was effected on the opposite side of the river, yesterday, went overboard and was drowned.

[illegible] RIVER.—Capt. [illegible], of the steamer [illegible], informs us that the bark Industry, [illegible] master, seven days from San Francisco [illegible] the Columbia river, coming up.

[illegible] OREGONIAN.

I have noticed that some person or persons through the columns of one of the dailies, have [illegible] it their pleasure to find a great deal of fault with the appearance and behavior of the boys on the public school ground and have charged the whole, without regard to [illegible] truth, to the teachers of that school. Now, it seems to me that when the facts are known, it would appear to be [illegible] other than a [illegible] desire to injure the school, against which they have an old grudge. Some have even gone so far as to predict and even under[illegible] the breaking up of the school, on account of the profanity and vulgarity [illegible] of the [illegible] attendance. When the leopard can change his spots, and the Ethiopian his skin, then can those boys who have been cradled and nursed in such vices, be taught by teaching in contradiction to the instructions of their parents, that which is correct, moral, and pure, and be persuaded or forced into it, in all their sports, and at all times.

[illegible] true teachers can and ought to have a [illegible] influence with them, but when their [illegible] impressions have been received in con[illegible] with such vices, how can a teacher, in [illegible] for a year, bring about a reformation in a school of fifty to one hundred, or, as [illegible] whole school in this place sometimes num[illegible] three hundred pupils, so as to efface all [illegible].

The school was condemned a short time ago, on account of a stabbing affray among the boys, and the teachers were accused of laxity [illegible] government, when, in fact, the boy who [illegible] guilty of the deed, did not belong to the school. Suppose then that such boys were expelled from the school, wherein is the rem[illegible] in that respect? In repeated instances, boys who have been expelled from the school [illegible] been a source of constant annoyance on the school grounds, just for revenge.

[illegible] have frequently sent their children to school at the same time telling the teacher that they could do nothing with them, and [illegible] the teachers to see if they could. Un[illegible] scores of such difficulties as these, the teachers of that school are laboring, and yet others are found of so little wisdom and [illegible] sense, as to use all their influence against it, and endeavor to break it up, because, for[illegible] this newly established school, composed [illegible] every variety of the genus homo, constantly coming and going, is not conducted on the plans of the old established schools in [illegible].

If parents would have it so, let them come [illegible] and aid in the training and governing of their children, and not think that [illegible] they cannot govern their little families [illegible], a teacher is able to control two or three hundred of them, and in six months, ed[illegible] them morally, physically, and intellec[illegible].

Remarkable Instance of Medical Relief

[illegible] by the distress [illegible] passion in youth, depressed in body and mind, unable

[illegible] performance of [illegible] duty imposed upon the [illegible] of life, I sought the advice of many physicians, who [illegible] my disease as of trifling importance. [illegible] after a few weeks, and in several instances [illegible] their treatment, I found, to my unutterable horror, that instead of relief, my symptoms became more alarming [illegible] and being told by one that my disease [illegible] confined to the brain, medicine would be of little consequence, I despaired of ever regaining my health, strength, and energy; and as a last resort, and with but a faint hope, called upon Dr. Czapkay, who, after examining [illegible] prescribed some medicine which almost instantly relieved me of the dull pain and dizziness in my head. [illegible] by the result, I resolved to place myself [illegible] by a strict obedience to all his directions and advice, my head became clear, and my ideas collected, the constant pain in my back and groins, the weakness [illegible] the nervous reaction of my whole [illegible] the slightest alarm or excitement, the [illegible] self-distrust and want of confidence [illegible] to study, and want of resolution, [illegible] at times pleasurable dreams at [illegible] by involuntary discharges, have all disappeared [illegible] in two months after having consulted [illegible] as if inspired by a new life—that life which [illegible] I contemplated to end by my own [illegible]. With the view to guard the unfortunate from falling [illegible] incompetent quacks, I deem it my duty to [illegible] to the merit and skill of Dr. Czapkay, [illegible] to all who may stand in need of medical [illegible] my own experience, that [illegible] a radical and permanent cure will be effected.
